Must Have Graduation From

High School or Institution of Equal Rank.

Equal Rank.

Under the rules adopted by the American Medical Association all college members of that Institution must require of their matriculates graduation from a high school or from some educational institution of equal rank.

The announcement of this obligatory rule has been made by Dr. Chiristopher Tompkins, dean of the Medical College of Virginia, to that institution, and the rule is effective from this time on. The same holds true of the University College of Virginia, as that institution. Same holds true of the University College of Virginia, as that institution. The same holds true of the university College of Virginia, as that institution is also a member of the maticulation factor. This will include the matriculation fee.

This new rule of the association will tend greatly to enhance the importance of the profession and to raise the efficiency of its members to a higher level. The movement has met with the general approval of the profession, so physicians generally recognized the importance of the step in view of the greater need for educational training in all scientific work.

The first feeling of the officers at the Navy Department, after reading the cablegram, was one of surprise that the accident had resulted in so little loss of life. The Kearsarge's forward turret, where it occurred, is of the superposed type; in other words, an eight-inch gunturet sat upon the top of the thirteeninch gun turret, where the accident occurred. In the lower turret were twenty-four men and in the uppert turret sixteen. An ammunition hoist conhected the two, and, had the powder in the lower hoist exploded, probably every man in the two turrets would have been killed.

in the two turrets would need set.

The full charge of powder for a thirteeninch gun is too large to be handled by any one man; so it is divided into sections in canvas bags, and it was three of these, probably just enough to fill one compariment in the annumition hoist, which ignited. As the cablegram states,
the cause of the ignition was not known, but the first belief at the Navy Department is that in cleaning up the turret and throwing open the breeches of the big guns after the last round had been fired, some small bit of smouldering canyas bagging was blown out of one

Court of Inquiry.

Lieutenant Graeme, who was mentioned as being in a very critical state at the time of the cablegram was sent, did not belong to the company of the Kearsarge. He was attached to the Maryland and was aboard the Kearsarge in the capacity of an umpire to check off and record the performance of the gunners, a very necessary function, in view of the keen spirit of rivalry obtaining between the crews of the big battleships in the matter of efficiency at target practice.

crews of the blg battleships in the matter of efficiency at target practice.

Naval regulations prescribe exactly what is to be done in a case of this kind. The admiral in command orders immediately a court of inquiry to ascertain the cause of the accident and places the responsibility therefor, and a court-martial will follow if any one is found at fault.

An Aberdeen Anecdote.

Here is a little anecdote of how Lord he was trespassing. "Oh, no," said Lord Aberdeen, "I am the guest of So-and-soi," "Vory probably," said the gentleman, "but you are now on my property." Lord Aberdeen apologized protusely, and handed him his card. The owner of the soil was Mr. Marjoribanks, afterward Lord Tweedmouth, who promptly invited the trespasser to luncheon at Guisachan. The unwitting poacher accepted, and in that may met Miss Isobel Marjoribanks, who became Lady Aberdeen.

The Building.

The building dedicated to-day will be classic in design. It fronts on B street, 470 feet; on New Jersoy avenue 470 feet; on First street 482 feet, and on C street street 348 feet, making a total frontage of 1,740 feet or approximately one-third of a mile. The building will contain 440 recomes for members, together with a multiplicity of caucus rooms, audience rooms, postoffice, restaurant and other features of a modern office building.

The long unbroken cornice lines of the office building, leading up naturally to the capital building and from thence to the great dome, the crowning and dominating unit in the group of building now on Capital plaza, are calculated by its designers to conduce to the desired effect of making the capital building more imposing and effective.

The address of President Roosevelt, who spoke on "The Muck-Rake Brigade," was in part as follows: ohn C. Bates was to-day placed on the baying reached the statutory age. He vas succeeded as chief of staff by Briga-Major-General Henry C. Corbin, whose be placed at the head of the staff.

ECZEMA AND FEVERISH-

Eczema is a tormenting, stubborn disease caused by an acid humor in the blood coming in contact with the skin and producing redness, inflammation and almost intolerable itching. An inactive state of the system and sluggish condition of the eliminative members leaves the waste and refuse matter of the body to collect and sour instead of passing them off through nature's channels of bodily waste. The blood in its efforts to purge the system of all foreign matter absorbs this acid and throws it off through the porces and glands of the skin. The acrid humor seems to coze out and set contact with the skin and producing redness, inflamintolerable itching. An inactive state of the system and of the climinative members leaves the waste and refuse to collect and sour instead of passing them off through the foliation of the climinative members to collect and sour instead of passing them off through the foliation of the system and the tem of all foreign matter absorbs this acid and throws it off through the pores and glands of the skin. The acrid humor seems to coze out and set the skin on fire, the straw colored, sticky fluid drying and forming crusts, and the itching is intense. When these pustules are scratched off the skin is left raw and feverish and often a solid sore is formed and kept up by the constant escape of acids from the blood. Local applications of salves, powders, lotions etc. are desirable and should be used because they allay the itching and give the sufferer temporary comfort, but are in no sense curative, because they cannot reach the sear of the results.

because they cannot reach the seat of the trouble, which is in the blood.

S. S. S. goes down into the blood, cleanses the circulation of all acids and humors, builds up the thin, sour blood and by removing every vestige of the cause cures Eczema permanently. The irritating eruptions disappear, nently. The irritating eruptions disappear, of blood, becomes soft and smooth again. S. S. growth of population has been by the growth of wealth and the growth of wealth and the growth in complex interests. The material problems that face us to-day are not such as they were in Washington's time, but the underlying facts of human nature are the same new as they were then. Under altered external form we war with the same tendencies toward evil that were evident in Washington's time, and are helped by the same tendencies for good. It is about some of these that I wish to say a word to-day. Opponents of Real Reform. Opponents of Real Reform.

The wild preachers of unrost and discontent, the wild agitators against the entire existing order, the men who act sign or from mere puzzle-headedness, the men who preach destruction without proposing any substitute for what they intend to destroy, or who propose a substitute which would be far worse than the existing evils—all these men are the most dangerous opponents of real reform. If they get their way they will lead the people into a deeper pit than any into which they could fall under the present system. If they fall to get their way they will still do incalculable harm by provoking the kind of reaction, which in its revolt against the senseless evil of their teaching, would enthrone more securely than ever the very evils which their misguided followers believe they are attacking. Men With Muck-Rake.

In Bunyan's Pilarim's Progress you may recall the description of the Man with the Muck-rake, the man who could look no way but downward, with the muck-rake in his hand; who was offered a celestial crown for his muck-rake, but who would neither look up nor regard the crown he was offered, but continued to rake to himself the filth of the floor.

There are, in the body pollite, economic and social, many and grave ovils, and there is urgent necessity for the sternest war upon them. There should be relentless exposure of and attack upon every evil man, whether politician or business man, every evil practice, whether in politics, in business, or in social life. I hall as a benefactor every writer or speaker, every man who, on the platform, or in book, magazine, or newspaper, with merciless severity makes such attack, provided always that he in his turn remembers that the attack is of use only if it is absolutely truthful. The liar is no whit better than the thief, and if his mendacity takes the form of slander, he may be worse than most thieves. It puts a premium upon knavery untruthfully to attack an honest man, or even with hysterical exaggeration to assail a bad man with untruth. An epidemic of indiscriminate assault upon character does not good, but very great harm. The soul of every secoundrel is gladdened whenever an honest man is assailed, or even when a secondered is untruthfully assailed.

Will Result in Calamity.

misguided followers believe they are attacking.

More important than aught else is the development of the broadest sympathy of man for man. The welfore of the wageworker, the welfare of the tiller of the soil, upon these depend the welfare of the entire country; their good is not to be sought in pulling down others; but their good must be the prime object of all our statesmanship.

Materially we must strive to secure a broader economic opportunity for all men, so that each shall have a better chance to show the stuff of which he is made. Spiritually and ethically we must strive to bring about clean living and right thinking. We approciate that the things of the body are important; but we appreciate also that the things of the soul are immensurably more important. The foundation stone of national life is, and ever must be, the high individual character of the average citizen.

ways. We have a public clamoring to buy goods of Irish manufacture, and with money, men and markets what is want-ing? Nothing except the inclination to use them.

money, men and markets what is wanting? Nothing except the inclination to use them.

We do solemnly assert our belief that some time Ireland will be discovered as virgin soil for the manufacturer to work on—a veritable El Dorado, Klondike or Rand. Some Yankee millionaire on holiday, with his wits about him, will stroll over the country and will see a land with 4,000,000 of people more or less unemployed and incompetent, manufacturing nothing in particular, expecting to be made prosperous by act of Parliament, and he will go away and get seven other millionaires worse than himself and they will run freland.

They will form nine circles in an earthly hell of trusts—a hay trust, a corn trust, a clothes trust, a railway trust, a manura trust, a potato trust, a porter trust, a whiskey trust and a land trust—and they will take the consumer and will pass him through all these nine circles into the deepst hell, where he will have to work, and the syndicate will get richer and richer, and it will confer a great benefit on the country by grinding it and foreing the inhabitants to labor hard for their living. Some time afterward the syndicate will be dynamited and it will expire, having conferred the great benefit of creating industrial habits in Ireland.

But while we throw out this valuable land.

But while we throw out this valuable hint to the millionaires, we are not dead set upon this plan of reforming Ireland. It will come if we do not do it ourselves. There will soon be no corner of the earth allowed to lie waste, and Ireland is an industrial swamp. What we want to point out is that it is possible to do it all ourselves.

We know the national objection to work and make haste to do!! It he are
